THE HVAC MAINTENANCE CHECKLIST FOR PET OWNERS

Maintaining your HVAC system is crucial to ensure optimal performance and air quality in a pet-friendly home. Below are some things you can do to keep your HVAC system running smoothly.

Regularly check and replace your HVAC air filter every 1-3 months

Pets shed dander and fur, which can clog air filters quickly, reducing airflow and efficiency. Regular replacement ensures proper filtration, maintaining good air quality and preventing strain on the HVAC system.

Use a humidifier in common areas of your home or wherever pets routinely visit

Pets can contribute to dry air through their respiration and the environment. A humidifier helps maintain optimal humidity levels, reducing the risk of respiratory issues and promoting comfort for both pets and humans.

Frequently vacuum carpets and upholstery

Pet hair, dander, and other debris accumulate on surfaces over time, becoming trapped in carpets and upholstery. Regular vacuuming helps minimize allergens and odors, improving indoor air quality and reducing the workload on the HVAC system.

Take your pet to the groomer

Regular grooming helps control shedding, reducing the amount of hair and dander released into the air. This proactive measure not only improves air quality but also contributes to your pet's health and comfort.
